

The scientific conference "Caucasus – Europe - America" was held at the Georgian Technical University

On November 10, 2023, the international scientific conference "Caucasus - Europe - America" took place at the Georgian Technical University, hosted by the Faculty of Engineering Economics, Media Technologies, and Social Sciences.

The conference commenced with the presence of Mr. Zurab Gasitashvili, Deputy Rector of the Technical University of Georgia, delivering the inaugural address.

The conference participants were addressed by the project coordinator and the head of the conference organizing group, Emzar Pazhava, associate professor of STU, and Nugzar Bardavelidze, associate professor of STU, one of the organizers of the conference.

The focal themes of the conference revolved around humanities and social sciences, drawing a diverse audience that included professors, educators, doctoral candidates, and master's students from various universities in Georgia and abroad. The conference's primary objective was to promote Euro-Atlantic studies among the scientific and research community, as well as students eager to expand their knowledge in this field.

Furthermore, the research papers presented at the conference will find their place in the forthcoming compilation of conference reports titled "European Studies," which will be made available in both print and electronic formats on the project's website: <http://jeanmonnet.gtu.ge>.

In summary, the scientific conference "Caucasus-Europe-America" was a significant gathering of scholars and academics, serving as a testament to the Technical University of Georgia's commitment to fostering intellectual growth and international collaboration.
